

The Crossroads of Money & Spirit: Understanding its Role in Our Lives, Our Work, and Our Organizations

3-Day Workshop
with John Bloom

April 6-8, 2010

$285 / Single Day $95

It is recommended that the 3 days of the workshop be taken together however each day will have a unique focus and can be taken on its own.

Day 1 Money & Biography

We will explore our money biographies from early life to the present. The purpose is to understand how our money and economic attitudes are formed and can be transformed. We will work to re-imagine how we want to work with money and finances.

Day 2 Money & Spirit in Organizations

In the framework of the threefold principles of interdependence, freedom and equality, we will look at the different qualities of money and financial transactions, and how we can work with them to develop a more equitable organizational financial landscape. The day will be based upon case studies prepared and brought by participants.

Day 3 Toward a Culture of Generosity: Leading from the Mission of Development Work w/ Joachim Ziegler, Ph.D., Organizational Development Consultant and Sunbridge Institute faculty.

We will look at the integral mission of fund raising and development work in a healthy spirit-based organization. We will explore what development is, consider the definition of and attitudes about wealth, and delve into the beauty and challenges of working with colleagues and donors in the context of organizational development.

www.Sunbridge.edu

Closing the Credibility Gap: Governance in Waldorf Schools

one day workshop with John Bloom and Jackie Henson

April 9, 2010

$95

This day-long workshop, featuring Jackie Henson, a nationally recognized attorney on charitable law and taxation, and John Bloom will explore the full range of issues in non-profit governance.

Ms. Henson will speak about the legal obligations, the duties of care and loyalty essential to the role, and emerging responsibilities of trusteeship and good governance. Mr. Bloom will address the framework and purposes of good governance as a way to free up human capacities on behalf of the social and spiritual mission of the organization.

www.Sunbridge.edu

John Bloom is Director of Organizational Culture at RSF Social Finance (RSF is a pioneering non-profit financial services organization, rfsocialfinance.org). As part of his work he has been developing the Transforming Money Collaborative, as well as other educational programs that address the intersection of money and spirit in personal and social transformation. John has worked with over 100 non-profits over the last several years in the areas of capacity building and culture change. As well as his experience in the non-profit world, John has also played many roles in the Waldorf Schools movement from founding parent and administrator of the San Francisco Waldorf School to consultant for numerous schools, and author of articles on pertinent topics facing Waldorf education today.

