

Associative Economics @ RSH

Rudolf Steiner House, 35 Park Road, London, NW1 6XT

Convenors: Dr. Christopher Houghton Budd*, Arthur Edwards***

Cost per evening: £7 (students £5)

Rudolf Steiner's Concept of Money

Rudolf Steiner is not alone, of course, in discussing the nature of money. And there are not a few writers, particularly in the early 20th century, whose views he merited and drew attention to, including Hartley Withers, (The Meaning of Money, 1909) and John Maynard Keynes. But Steiner's view of money is in fact unique and it would be wonderful if, especially at this time in history, it could be more developed. The following Economics Conference events focused on money have been organised:

12 FEBRUARY

19.30-21.00 Making Credit less Crunchy - I

Reviewing Real Estate – the Danger of 'Real Credit'

19 MARCH

19.30-21.00 Making Credit less Crunchy - II

Capitalising Initiative – the Need for 'Personal Credit'

* Member of the Economics Conference of the Goetheanum (economics.goetheanum.org)

Sponsored by the Centre for Associative Economics (cfae.biz)

Registration and further information: 01227 738207 or admin@cfae.biz

To follow in the development of associative economics, subscribe to

Associate!

A Monthly Digest from the World of Economics

Available in electronic (£15 pa) or hard copy (£20 pa) format

Visit cfae.biz/aem

